

The Insanity of War

Human's have the mental, emotional, moral, and spiritual ability to solve any problems that occur among us and any other threats to this earth by reasoning together and applying our ability to solve problems.

Instead of trying to reasonably, lovingly and gently solve problems in a way that benefits everyone and everything, we choose the self-destructive, life-destructive, earth-destructive method of war to attempt to solve nearly all problems that present themselves to us, inhabitants of the earth.

War expresses extreme moral idiocy among humans and is one manifestation of humankind's insanity. Any action that destroys or degrades one's self or one's own home is insane.

Self-destruction is always insane. Destruction of one's habitat is always self-destructive.

Not all humans are insane. Many are kind, thoughtful, always careful that their actions and thoughts are constructive to all existence. Enough people are insane and achieve enough power over others to command military forces and make their insanity humankind's dominant direction.

Insanity commands heavily-armed military forces and defines the difference between life on earth as possible and pleasant, developing into a future of beauty and love, or unpleasant, with hatred and destruction so strongly expressed that life becomes unpleasant for all, even eventually impossible.

War, any war, always makes problems worse than they were before we used war to attempt to solve our problems, as is horrifyingly obvious in contemporary times, when we hover on the brink of destroying all life and rush toward oblivion more suddenly as the result of world leaders' idiocy in governing the earth's future, our future, life's future, with far too much destructive power over all life, all existence, because of controlling mechanically-augmented means of war.

The human use of violence to try to solve problems and to gain power has been part of our existence for thousands of years.

The potential to do great damage to all life, to the earth, to all existence, has increased greatly since the beginning of the industrial revolution as every new mechanical discovery has been quickly used to amplify the power of war by "leaders" who greedily pursue more wealth, more power over others, greedily use every new means of destruction to destroy "the enemy," whoever those "leaders" define as "the enemy" at a particular moment and to destroy more of The Earth, our home.

"The enemy" has become the self-misunderstood self of the supposed leader or leaders, projected outward onto any usable target, an example of psychopathic action of a destructive personality in operation on a world-wide level.

Transfer of identity of individual humans from willing expression and reinforcement of an eternal spiritual force for good, reflected in material form, to expression of a force for destruction of and reduction of good, always has been a possible direction for individual expression.

With abetment of mechanical reinforcement, this force for destruction has become a crisis that threatens all life on earth and the earth itself.

I drown this knowledge in the joy of and gratitude for existence of all that is positive all I can, but I can think of no solution for this crisis, the end of material existence through the existence and expression of this insanity, evil.

Awareness of this force loose in the world often inhabits my consciousness when I sleep, in nightmares, and when I am awake, as thought, knowledge, that hovers in my mind.

I am open to any solution to this all-involving material reality but so far, I see keeping my own thoughts clear of any kind of violence, finding and experiencing beauty and Love and keeping all my actions in line with the adage, "do unto others as you would have them do unto you." as my only possible recourse for today, for this moment.
